

CURATORIAL ASSOCIATE

As a curatorial associate, you will assist senior colleagues in handling collections and curating exhibitions.

Your responsibilities include:

- Conducting research on toys and childhood memorabilia that are within, and beyond, the museum's present collection
- Develop areas of research specialisation to support institutional policies on collection management, publications and exhibition programming
- Assist in the planning and execution of exhibitions and programmes, including conceptualising, seeking partnerships, liaising with external institutions and coordinating general exhibition matters. This includes working with other museum colleagues in presenting programmes such as lectures, talks and workshops, as well as providing content for collaterals, such as website and publicity materials

Highly recommended for you to have:

- A graduate degree in history, arts management or related field
- A keen interest in toys and history
- An excellent research, writing, communication and interpersonal skills
- Fluency in English. Additional language, such as Mandarin, would be a plus
- Great attention to details and ability to manage multiple projects simultaneously
- Good project management and organisational skills
